COVID-19 vaccine in Øygarden

The purpose of vaccination against COVID-19 is to protect the life and health of those who are most vulnerable to disease from the coronavirus. The vaccine protects each individual person from disease. Once a sufficient portion of the population has been vaccinated, spread of the disease may be prevented. For companies, vaccination is important to help ensure a stable workforce.

Everyone over the age of 18, who is a citizen or staying in Øygarden Municipality over time, shall be offered a COVID-19 vaccine.

Persons from other municipalities, who commute to Øygarden to work or study, shall in general get vaccinated in Bergen.

Initially there will not be enough COVID-19 vaccines for everyone and the most vulnerable will be vaccinated first. The Norwegian Institute of Public Health distributes vaccines and the Municipality of Øygarden will give vaccines as soon as doses become available.

Citizens and those staying in the municipality in connection with work and studying can register in the vaccination queue electronically. To do this, it is necessary to have a personal identification number or D-number.

Vaccination is free
